

Dear FCC Members, Even though television executives have always protested loudly and vehemently to the contrary, it is quite clear that television violence is completely out of control. Evidence has shown that children who are exposed to this violence are damaged behaviorally and emotionally. Please do something to stop this continued assault on our families, since the industry itself refuses to even admit any blame, and cannot be trusted to police itself by removing gratuitous violence from television programming.